

Careers related to Motor studies

Light Vehicle Technician

An Automotive Technician is an experienced mechanic able to carry out diagnosis and repairs, on the most complex and advanced vehicles of today.

Salary: £22,000 - £38,000

HGV Technician

HGV Technicians typically apply their skills to vehicles weighing over 3.5T, able to carry out work on today's wide range of commercial vehicles from Busses and Coaches to Rigid body and Tractor unit and Trailers.

Salary: £25,000 - £50,000

Roadside Technician

This profession allows you to work in a different place every day never having to endure the 9-5 commute, meeting new people every day and enjoying the satisfaction of being someone's hero every time you pull up.

Salary: £28,000 - £60,000

Workshop Manager

Main dealer workshops are busy and cannot afford delay! As a manager, your responsibility would be to manage and organise your team so that the workshop flows smoothly.

Salary: £25,000 - £35,000

Service Manager

Your responsibilities would be to book customers in and liaise information from the workshop to the customer to ensure customer satisfaction.

Salary: £30,000 - £50,000

F1/ Motorsport

This is a demanding but rewarding job ranging from car build in the factory to pit lane at the track. For those who want to travel the world 10 to 20 times a year doing what they love, this is the career for you.

Salary: £35,000 - £100,000